

Modelling purity restores FDR control under contamination confounding

Nominal FDR 0.10 (dashed). Purity is estimated from the counts, never supplied. n = 5 per group, 50 simulations.

Dropping low-purity samples removes data without removing the confound; entering purity in the design matrix holds at nominal and costs almost nothing when no confounding exists.